

Just in time for The 2012 General Tire Mint 400 race! The Mint 400 and Supercross.com will join forces to produce and distribute news articles, photos, and exclusive video coverage to the vast numbers of Supercross fans on the Supercross.com website, throughout The Mint 400 race weekend, and the weeks following the race.

“We’re thrilled to be working with Supercross.com! This partnership will extend our reach with the race dramatically – which is great for the event, our sponsors, and our race teams. Off-road racing and Supercross share the same competitive history and love for dirt – so we’re excited to help showcase The Great American Off-Road Race to the entire Supercross community.” – said Mint 400 Owner Matt Martelli

In addition to sponsoring The Mint – Supercross.com will be campaigning three vehicles under the Aero Motorsports banner in the top three unlimited classes. The Supercross.com Trophy (Trick) Truck will be piloted by Ryan Poelman and co-driver Garrett Poelman. Their Class 1 racecar will be driven by Matt Cook and Jason Markham. And the teams Class 1600 car will be run by Jason Markham and Jake Wreesman.

“The Mint 400 is the most important off-road event – with the best media coverage, in North America right now. Between the fantastic Fuel TV show, the shows placement on iTunes, and our expansive web coverage on Supercross.com – it’s really going to be a fantastic event, that showcases the very best of off-road racing. We’re thrilled to be a sponsor, content partner, and to be able to compete in the race itself. It’s a stacked field this year...full of the top racers in the world – but we’re ready to give everyone a run for their money!” – said Matt Cook of Supercross.com / Aero Motorsports

About The Mint 400 // themint400.com

Started in 1976, The General Tire Mint 400 is steeped in American lore, as thousands of racers, as well as celebrities from around the world, have attempted to tame the brutal Nevada desert. Known as “The Great American Off-Road Race,” The Mint 400 is an epic battle between some of the top off-road racers in the world in over twenty-two different classes of off-road vehicles. An entire week of events lead up the famed off-road race in and around Las Vegas, including a vehicle parade, drivers meet and greet, pit crew contest, crowning of Miss Mint, multiple parties, qualifying, and Contingency or Vehicle Tech inspection. You’re invited to come spectate, party, and race!
